Special Issue from the 2007 Conference on Decision and Control

The Norwegian control community is very active in international journals and conferences. While this shows the strength of our community, it does present a challenge for a research bulletin like MIC, which tries to represent and give an overview of the activities in our field.

It is therefore with pleasure we can now present a special issue from the 2007 Conference on Decision and Control, this being one of the more prestigious annual conferences in the control area. We thank the IEEE for permission to re-publish a selection of the papers with Norwegian authors that were presented at the CDC.
